About Western Agency

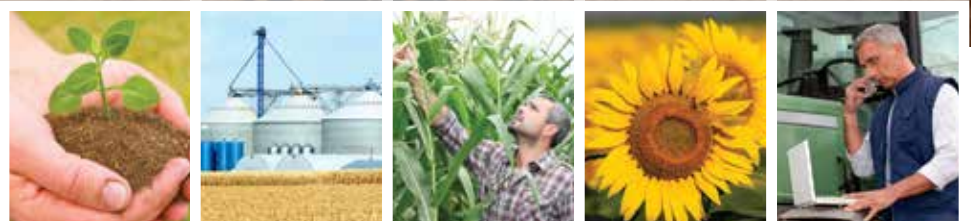

Since 1976, Western Agency has provided complete coverage and full-service claim support for thousands of farmers, business owners and individuals with a variety of insurance needs. We specialize in farm, crop, commercial, and contract bond insurance. The wide variety of companies we do business with helps us to provide you with a range of coverage options to best suit your specific needs.

With a 40-year track record for prompt claim support and comprehensive coverage Western Agency is the kind of company you can count on — in both good times and bad.

Our business is to protect your assets.

It's what guided our company for more than three decades. Clients who have been with us since the beginning, understand this first hand.

Farm

Western Agency currently insures nearly 1,000 farms across North and South Dakota. We have partnerships with the highest-rated independent insurance companies in the country. What does this mean for you? Every farm in the region has different insurance needs. By having a stable slate of companies available, we can match your operation and needs to the company that best fits you.

We begin by sitting down with you at your farm. We evaluate your equipment, buildings, vehicles, recreational vehicles, GPS equipment, and anything that needs coverage for physical damage. We look at your needs for spray drift coverage, pollution and liability umbrellas — to name a few. Once a comprehensive policy is developed, our agents will review your policy with you annually to make sure your coverage is correct.

MPC | Crop Hail

Because all agents offer the same product in the Federal Crop Insurance Program, it's a common misconception that an agent's skill, service and experience are irrelevant. Nothing can be further from the truth. The difference between an experienced agent and an inexperienced one could mean tens to hundreds of thousands of dollars on your claim. When you work with our agents, you're receiving optimum coverage, unmatched experience and the best service the industry offers.

Unlike other agents, Western Agency does not ask our clients to do all the work. We meet with you in person to gather acreage and production information. We also send reminders about upcoming dates and changes so you are always informed about important issues in crop insurance.

Western Agency reviews your production history in detail to maximize your coverage. Then, before sales closing, we meet with you to determine which plans, levels and options provide the most value to your specific situation. We also have a dedicated, well-educated and trained staff of crop insurance specialists who work 100 percent in the Federal Crop Insurance Program, and are available to offer assistance with FSA programs. Our job is to make sure your policies are in the best shape possible.

Claims

Whether it is a claim on your farm or crop, we strive to make sure you're getting an equitable settlement! To accomplish this, we represent companies that have a proven history of fast, fair claim service. Unlike most captive agents, we can really make a difference in the claims process.

Our goal is to provide you with unparalleled service and expertise. In regards to crop insurance audits, we'll help you organize your data for fast approval. We can facilitate gathering your FSA paperwork and get it to the adjusters ahead of time to help speed up the process.

Community Involvement

At Western Agency, we believe it's just as important for us to contribute to the communities where we work and do business as it is to sell the right policies to our individual clients. For us, that means giving back and investing in valuable resources. We believe investments in youth, education and community programs present some of our greatest opportunities, — both as a company and as individuals. Over the years, Western Agency has provided collegiate scholarships, sponsorships, community event and food bank support at each of our locations.
